Sliced Thin by The Editor

WEDNESDAY'S statement by the Department of Labor that the cost of food in the United States has risen 28.6 per cent since 1932, while cotton is almost back where it started from at the bottom of the panic, reveals how dangerous the business of seeking to fix prices by government regulation.

The problem is sometimes as despairing as the problem of "fixing" the weather. Indeed, the two problems are closely allied—for it was a record drought in the Middle West that helped meat prices show the greatest increase of all, 46.9 per cent.

To a certain extent America must control agricultural production—crops that like cotton depend on a world price—but our present experience with food prices reveals that the more we interfere with the natural law of supply and demand the greater the effort we must put forth to correct man-made errors that are greater than any of those produced in nature.

Here's a peculiar fact about the movement of food prices: You would think that as wheat went up and down in price flour would move with it. But flour, I am told, doesn't do that.

The price of flour isn't fixed entirely by the price of wheat.

Millers get another product besides flour, out of wheat. They get shorts. They balance the price they pay for wheat out of the price they receive for flour and shorts.

Flour hasn't fallen this year with the decline in the price of wheat. The reason flour hasn't fallen is because the price of shorts went down plenty, due to the farmers having plenty of their own feedstuffs.

The millers, therefore, have to get their price of wheat out of flour, if they failed to get much of it out of shorts.

And on the other hand, when a feed crop failure on the farm puts the price of shorts up, the price of flour may come down—even though the price of wheat remains steady.

Strange is the law of supply and demand—yet reasonable enough when explained.

The charge against the employee is a woman stenographer, Dr. Warner said, for typing and microphotographing a political letter at the direction of Chairman Z. M. McCarroll of the corporation commission.

Dr. Warner said McCarroll had informed him that he was under the impression that the stenographer was not classified as an employee under civil service.

Dr. Warner said the employee involved is Mrs. Mamie Crump, court reporter for the commission.

The Arkansas Democrat said the material involved was to be used in the campaign of Governor Bailey in his race for the United States Senate.

Americans' Big Stake in a Powerful Navy

EVEN the most convinced pacifist must have moments, these days, in which he feels like thanking his God for the United States Navy.

We seem to have passed entirely out of the era in which international law or international treaties meant anything in particular. What makes the present so dark and the future so discouraging is the fact that the world has reverted to the rule of brute force.

A nation's only safeguard lies in its own strength; and it is extremely comforting to see that America's strength is fully implemented—sinewed and made ready in a way no one can mistake.

x x x

WE have been one of the world's luckiest nations for a century and a half—lucky because of our isolation, because of our infinite supply of natural resources, because destiny supply of natural resources, because destiny fixed things so that we could work out our own salvation in our own way.

But lucky nations are on the spot nowadays. The nations which have not been lucky have set out to take the things which have been denied them. In Ethiopia, in Spain and in China we have had ample opportunity to see just how determined and ruthless this desire to get a better share of the good things of this earth can make a people.

It used to be supposed that simply to possess strong armaments put a nation on its muscle. Build a great fleet or a great army and you will sooner or later go looking for a chance to use it—so ran the argument. But our own recent experience disproves that. We have one of the two mightiest navies on earth—yet we have resolutely kept our skirts clear of all entanglement in the Mediterranean, and have followed, in China, precisely the course we would have followed if our fleet were small and weak.

And as we do this we have the comfort of knowing that the war cannot be brought to our own shores. What happened to Nanking and Madrid won't happen to San Francisco or New York. Not until our navy is destroyed—and there exists today no power that could destroy it—can that be inflicted on us.

x x x

OUR old pre-war outlook, which held that strong armaments were somehow incompatible with peace-loving democracy, has had to change. Democracy today is on trial as never before. It has to be strong enough to defend itself against powers which would destroy it.

Until this turbulent and uncertain era passes, it is hard to see how we can do anything else than keep our fleet as strong as the strongest and as ready as the readiest.

Practical Conservatism

WILLIAM O. DOUGLAS, new chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, sounds like a pretty good sort of man for the job. He explains that his function, as he sees it, is to fight for markets which are honest and "free of monkey business." And then he goes on to answer the complaint that he is a hair-brained radical:

"I think I am really a pretty conservative sort of a fellow from the old school, perhaps a school too old to be remembered. I think that from the point of view of investors the one safe controlling and guiding stand should be conservative standards of finance—no monkey business."

That, as he says, is genuine conservatism—of a kind which has now and then seemed rather out of date in Wall Street. It would not hurt the investing public in the least to have such conservatism enforced on the market.

Without Early Diagnosis, Treatment Prospects for Cancer Cure Are Slim

This is the 17th of a series in which Dr. Morris Fishben discusses cancer, its causes and methods of prevention and treatment.

(No. 338)
Cancers may be internal or external. Many people will watch a cancer grow on the surface of the body for months or years before they do anything about it. Then the outlook is hopeless.

Moreover, cancers in the interior of the body may give rise to symptoms which will be regularly neglected because they are not sufficiently severe. When a cancer affects the brain, it reveals itself rather promptly by pressure and even by paralysis due to destruction of brain tissue.

Legal Notice

The City of Hope, Arkansas, will make the following improvements at the Hope Water & Light Plant, to-wit: Construction of a new roof and other repairs in accordance with specifications furnished by The Hope Water & Light Plant upon request.

Contract for this construction shall be let to the lowest responsible bidder. Sealed bids will be received by the Board of Public Affairs of said City up to 10:00 o'clock A. In association with the development of a cancer in the lung there may be coughing, the pouring of pus from the infected tissues of similar serious symptoms. Occasionally people with cancer of the brain may add years to their lives by having the skull opened and the tissue removed.

In cancer of the lung life may be extended by complete removal of the lung after it has been collapsed with pneumothorax.

A cancer in the pancreas may be detected by the development of too much insulin and by the fatigue and tiredness associated with excessive burning of sugar in the body. One expert says that nobody with a cancer of the pancreas or liver has ever survived and that only about 5 per cent of those with cancer of the stomach are saved.

Since every hope rests in treating a cancer at the earliest possible moment, physicians are likely to say over and over again that it is absolutely necessary for the people concerned to get to competent scientific advice as soon as possible.

The situation seems to be improving because nowadays many people are being saved who would not have been saved in a previous generation. Yet 3000 people still die every year in the United States from cancers of the skin—all of which are curable in the early stages—and 10,000 women die every year from cancer of the breast, which is curable in 80 per cent of cases if seen early.

NEXT: Prevention of cancer.

Farley May Quit to Head Car Firm

As Pierce Arrow President He Would Be "Economic Nobleman"

By PRESTON GROVER
WASHINGTON.—Jim Farley's reported decision to quit the government and become an economic nobleman, if not quite a royalist, ought to rescue him from a host of pangs.

The years of the open hand when Farley was the lord high dispenser of federal patronage were pleasant years for a man of his disposition. To the loyal party servants who helped him make the party great he could be liberal without stint, for not in history was there such a prolonged period of the bulging purse.

But the times have changed and the hand that fed the patronage line must now beat them back. Most of the pig is gone and the man who dispenses what is left for the next three or four years will have to say "No" more often than "Yes."

Farley may have the ability to say "No" and make 'em like it, but not in recent years has he had much experience along that line.

Rising Value
A stack of reasons could be given for Farley's decision to leave as early as possible to become (as good report had it) the president of Pierce-Arrow Motor Company. Farley may never have measured them all out in his mind in deciding this was the time to go, but his decision turns the light on them, regardless.

First off, his $12,000 a year job as postmaster general isn't fat money for the new Jim Farley. Like many another public servant, his public life has enhanced his value in the private world.

It isn't to be denied that Farley was doing fair to middling in the years immediately before he came into the public eye as national Democratic chairman, New York state chairman, and ultimately as postmaster general. But it is not of record that he had attained such standing in the industrial world that he was in line to head a major motor company, albeit he was well known to be a first line salesman.

Before his elevation to the cabinet, he was New York state boxing commissioner, a job he received, by the way, from Governor Al Smith upon the recommendation of Jimmy Walker, ex-mayor. That also was a public office that helped build up the service value of Jim Farley.

Farley has flung himself into public life with both zeal and talent, but in return public life has not done badly by him.

There's 1940

A second reason for his present departure from public life is that he isn't adverse to more of it. New York will elect a governor next year, and Farley has never indicated he would pass up a job like that just now.

Moreover, he is only 49 and should need no telescope to see the presidential possibilities for himself in 1940, especially if he should win the governorship next year.

And that raises a third point that may come into play in his side from the mail pouches to the elegance of Pierce-Arrow. Genial Jim, the generous giver of patronage, is known and loved by Democrats the nation over. But if Genial Jim should stay on during the years of expected retrenchment and become Jim the denier, his lovability might be forgotten when time came in 1940 to pick a man to save the game from the Tigers.

To Farley, life has been a constantly expanding universe, and if for a time he leaves a steadily shrinking patronage job to join up with a motor company it will be right in character.

Of Corset's in the Best Form as 10 Pounds of Mae Go West

HOLLYWOOD.—Sometimes it takes four hours of waiting around just to see Mae West for a few minutes. Sometimes it's worth it.

Miss West has lost 10 pounds, so I don't suppose she required the four hours to get into one of her 17 Schiaparelli gowns. Anyway she remained in her bungalow, knowing that she would be sent for as soon as the set and lights and camera and other players were ready for another scene in "Every Day's a Holiday."

While waiting, I went into a projection room and saw some rushes of the scenes taken the day before. It was New Year's Eve, and Peaches O'Day (Miss West) was hipping along the street and meeting Edmund Lowe. Lowe plays a captain of detectives who has been assigned to bring in Peaches because of her bad habit of selling the Brooklyn Bridge.

But Lowe hates the police commissioner as much as he likes Peaches, so they got to talking about the official.

Mae: He's sore because I didn't toss him a tumble."

Lowe: "Has that rat been making love to you?"

Mae: "Well, he's gone through all the emotions."

That ought to give you an idea. Back on the set, it was something of a shock to see two nuns, real nuns, sitting on the sidelines watching the action. They wouldn't allow their pictures to be taken. Later (visiting Miss West's new bungalow, I found her maid replacing a couple of nude statues which had been removed before the sisters' visit.

Pink, Baby Blue Bath
The bungalow is just as modern as her pictures are old-fashioned. First thing that hits your eye is the dormer, which says, "Come up and see me some time." Inside the chief display piece is a startling, unclad, snow-white statue labeled "Mae West," and executed by Gladys Lewis Bush.

The living room and dressing room are done all in white and cream, even to the piano and set of drums which stand in one corner. The actress likes to beat out some hot licks on the traps. Finds it soothing to the nerves. But she didn't demonstrate.

I even had a chance to inspect the norship next year.

And that raises a third point that may come into play in his side from the mail pouches to the elegance of Pierce-Arrow. Genial Jim, the generous giver of patronage, is known and loved by Democrats the nation over. But if Genial Jim should stay on during the years of expected retrenchment and become Jim the denier, his lovability might be forgotten when time came in 1940 to pick a man to save the game from the Tigers.

To Farley, life has been a constantly expanding universe, and if for a time he leaves a steadily shrinking patronage job to join up with a motor company it will be right in character.

bath. It's done in baby blue and pink, mirrors and chromium, and reveals at a glance that Cecil DeMille was just an amateur in his fancy-bathroom days. Miss West is just cur-r-r-azy about the place. Pink and baby blue are her favorite colors.

The hat shelf looks like an aviary. There are ostrich plumes, and birds that seem to fly and roost and swoop. The actress says there is nothing to that old adage about birds of a feather.

Hour-Glass Figuring
Her dressing-room closet, about the size of a boxcar, was lined with 16 Schiaparelli gowns. She was wearing the seventeenth, a scarlet number with a lace business at the ah-throat.

In spite of her 10-pound reduction she still is a real corset, of course. She didn't mind being asked, either. She said, "No, I really like corsets. They're comfortable. They make you feel just like you're being held."

"But I don't wear the long ones. Mine come just down to here. Better than a girdle. I don't like girdles." When she said "down to here," she indicated a latitude just a little south of the West hip. Apparently she has been doing some more research on hour-glass figures, for a table was piled with women's magazines of about 1900.

"Wouldn't it be a good idea to have a small corset made for that statue?" asked Miss West, indicating the figure by Sculptress Bush. "Or would the Hays office object?"

I said I thought the Hays office probably would approve any sort of covering for the figure.

BARBS

India's white elephants become royal property at birth. In the United States they are passed around and wind up as public property.

Research shows that in the 17th century the table knife was used for cutting as well as eating. In the unskilled pen-balancer's hand, it still serves both purposes.

Added to the disillusion of cynics' claims that the Constitution is not sacred, someone now has a cruel theory that Cinderella's slippers actually were not glass.

A German streamlined train is called the "Flying Hamburger." A school-child could guess the names of its Pullman cars—"Onion," "Pickle," and "Lettuce"—both.

Dora wonders why, if Mother Nature is the most beautiful thing in the universe, all these airmen are continually trying to grapple the earth.

Your Children

By Olive Roberts Barton

Crime at High Tide

A well-known criminologist asks, "Where is the discipline of yesterday? Why is crime increasing in the younger ranks? What are parents thinking about when they allow their children to go places and do things they have no idea of?"

He is right. Where has the freedom demanded by the sympathizers of youth led us? Look at the figures. Seventy per cent of all crime is committed by boys (and girls) under age.

Taking into consideration that outside forces are at work which never entered the picture before, there is still this to say. Discipline at home has become more lax, especially where adolescents are concerned. The steady pull has been away from home.

Parents have had a double battle to fight, it is true, but instead of valiantly making a fight against the obscure recreations of their children, have simply allowed their authority to be undermined by advisors who insist that youth needs greater freedom and independence to work out ideas and ideals. The younger child, too, has too often been suppressed.

But conformity and regulation should be part of each growing year. Individualism is important. Self sufficiency is important. The growing child should be strengthened to the proper kind of self dependence. But again, parents have to frequently misunderstood the signs, and have been led to think they must relinquish all authority. I admire the mother and father who insist on knowing who their children's friends are where they are spending their time; and who make a positive supervision until an age of "self judgment" is reached.

Parents, do not allow yourselves to be hoodwinked by those misguided ones who urge free living. Know what your boy or girl is doing and thinking. Do not be content to let others use your own offspring. They are yours and you are responsible for them. Social forces are against you, but you can defeat them by joining arms with other parents, and taking a stand. Crime is not always the product of under-privilege. Too often the contrary. There are many ways of making youth happy and contented with life without their getting mixed up with people you don't know, and going places you know nothing of.

It is time for a crusade against bad influence. Your children will thank you. They need protection both against crime and FROM it.

in Prettiest Costumes to New York Track

Not all who went to the opening of Belmont Park were tailored tweeds. Here's Mrs. Orson D. Mum in a suave wool dressmaker frock and bonnet which is more like a head-dress than a hat. The scarf creates a kind of Arabian burnouse effect.

The dress which the Duchess of Roxburghe, left, wore to the Belmont races is a shining example of the new mode—slim and seductive—slim below the waistline, seductive above. Notice the draped bodice, elbow-length sleeves, extremely narrow skirt. Mrs. Peter A. B. Widener, right, wore a black velvet skirt and trim, waistcoat-like jacket with black velvet sleeves and back and white front. A sophisticated, peaked hat, beautiful silver fox furs, jewelled clip and slim pumps go with it.

With a suave wool jersey sports suit, Mrs. Harold E. Talbott wears a jaunty hat and gauntlet gloves. Her blouse is striped jersey, in bright colors, as is fitting for a woman whose horses are expected to behave brilliantly this fall.

Brady Gang Aims to Outdo Dillinger

'G' Men Rate Them 'Tops'—But Women May Be Their Downfall

By JAMES DOSS
INDIANAPOLIS.—(AP)—From Indiana, home of John Dillinger, has sprung a gang of G-men label the most vicious now operating.

It is that of Al Brady and his two under-sized pals who have boasted frequently, according to underworld gossip, that they would "out-Dillinger" Dillinger. They've gone a long way towards making good.

Police charge them specifically with three killings, several bank robberies and holdups. There is a federal reward of $500 out for each.

Like Dillinger, they broke jail after one whirled at outburst.

Like Dillinger and his henchmen, they started out on a series of bank robberies.

Youngest Is a Braggart
Like the Dillinger gang, they have the G-men on their trail. Director J. Edgar Hoover has set after them a picked squad of federal agents, as usual in such cases. His men have a code word for the gang—"the braggart squad."

Most important of all, possibly, the gang has its known weakness. Like Dillinger, its members are overly fond of women.

The "braggart squad" are just two former farm boys and a big city who went wrong.

All three—Alfred Brady, James Dalhovey and Clarence Lee Shaffer, Jr., are small. "Police call them 'half pint killers.'" All are the products of broken homes, and are 21 to 31 years old. Both Brady and Dalhovey are morose, while Shaffer is boastful and talkative, like Dillinger. To him is credited a crack about "making Dillinger a piker."

What They're Like
Here are details from the Federal Bureau of Identification and the police.

Alfred Brady, credited with being the gang organizer, is an Indiana farm boy, described by one of his first sweethearts as "too sweet to hurt anyone." Punctured and hard-muscled from his years on the farm and at a machine's bench, he was born near Kentland, Ind., in 1910 and attended elementary school at North Salem. When he was a child, his father died and Brady moved with his mother to Indianapolis. She married, but died in 1926.

CHAPTER XX

SERGEANT DOLAN proceeded with his investigation.

"Mr. Smith," he said, addressing the young man in 2-13, "I understand you were not at home when the murder occurred?"

Mr. Smith repeated his wife's explanation to Detective Martin. They had spent the day in Rutherford, N. J., with relatives, not leaving there until 1:20. They did not hear of the tragedy until the following morning. Dolan looked to Martin for confirmation of this. Martin nodded. Evidently the Smiths' alibi had checked.

Dolan turned again to the Hunters. "Where did you live before, Hunter?" he demanded.

"In Brooklyn, sir. Down on Herkimer street. I was raised in Brooklyn. Never lived anywhere else."

"And you, Mrs. Hunter?"
Cilly looked at the woman as she rose to answer the sergeant's question. She appeared visibly shaken and nervous. Without doubt, she had been frightened by Cilly's revelation. Would the sergeant notice that, she wondered? His shrewd eyes, glancing over Mrs. Hunter, were unfathomable.

"I've lived in Brooklyn, sir, ever since my marriage—25 years ago. Before that I lived on Long Island, in Farmingdale."

"You were married, therefore, when your husband became paralyzed?"

Mrs. Hunter's lower lip trembled, she fumbled in her bag for a handkerchief.

"Yes, sir."

"Was he in an accident?"

"Yes, sir... that is—oh, don't ask me to talk about it!" She burst into tears. "You tell him, George!" she pleaded. "You tell him about it. It's better if you do."

"Hush, Nellie!" Mr. Hunter admonished, not unkindly. "You see, sergeant," he explained, "my wife grieves about it. It gets her upset to talk about it."

"I see. It was an accident, Hunter?"

"Yes, sir. I had a fall, and then the doctors didn't treat it right, I guess. The old doctor down in Herkimer street who took care of me is dead, and I went to a couple of others, to please my wife, but they couldn't do anything for me."

SERGEANT DOLAN rubbed his chin thoughtfully for a moment, but his eyes never left the man's face.

"Hunter," he said finally, "it strikes me as queer that a man like you—lived in a wheelchair—would want to live on the top floor of a walk-up apartment."

Cilly listened eagerly for Hunter's reply. Why hadn't she realized that before?

"Well, I guess it seems queer," Hunter admitted. "We can't afford an expensive apartment, in an elevator building. I can't work, you see, and we just live on a small income. We took the top floor because I like to get the air, and I don't like to sit out in the street. People stare at me. Being up high, I can get out on the roof and sit there. Johnson always helps me up."

Sergeant Dolan looked inquiringly at the superintendent. "That right, Johnson?" he asked.

"Yes, sir, that's right. Sometimes in the afternoons, Mrs. Hunter gives me a buzz and I take Mr. Hunter up in the wheelchair. Sometimes in the evening, if the weather is good."

"Did you help him up there last Sunday?"

"Yes, sir. About 1 o'clock last Sunday afternoon. Then just about 4, before I went out for the afternoon, I brought him down again."

"O. K., Johnson. Now tell me this: did Mrs. Wheeler say anything to you about going away?"

"No, sir, she didn't. It was a surprise to me when I went up there yesterday afternoon with Detective Martin. It certainly looked as if she'd cleared out."

"How long did she live in the Bayview, Johnson?"

The superintendent scratched his head thoughtfully for a moment. "Oh, I guess Mrs. Wheeler's been there three or four years."

"Did she ever say why she moved to Brooklyn?"

"No, she didn't. A good many folks come over from Manhattan lately to save money. Rents are cheaper in Brooklyn."

Dolan nodded. He looked over the Bayview tenants again. His eyes rested on the school teacher in 4-A.

"Miss Downey," he said, "what can you tell me?"

Miss Downey, prim and prudish, rose to her feet, smoothing out her skirt as she did so. She held her head erect.

"Not a thing, Sergeant Dolan," she stated. "We can't tell you a thing. We heard the scream, of course—mother and I. And we rushed to the window to see what had happened. Other than that, we know nothing."

"I see. Have you always lived in Brooklyn, Miss Downey?"

"Oh, yes. I graduated from Erasmus High and Adelphi. We've always lived in Brooklyn. Mother was born down in 17th street, near Fourth avenue."

"Thank you, Miss Downey. And now, Mrs. Downey, is there anything you can tell me?"

"I was going to tell you," Mrs. Downey began slowly, "that the moment I heard that poor girl scream I jumped from my bed. Lucille got up, too. Well, it was the most awful thing. She must have fallen right past our window. It was terrible. I tell you, never in my life have I had such a shock. I thought I was going to faint. My heart's not so good, sergeant."

"She paused for breath and laid a plump hand over her bosom."

"Well, I went out into the kitchen for my tablets—I keep them over the sink where they'll be handy—and just as I got to the kitchen I heard someone running down the stairs. I'm sure of it, sergeant. I heard those steps just as well as I hear your voice now. It was a man running downstairs—you know how heavy a man's footsteps are. It was the murderer, sergeant. I know it."

Cilly stiffened. Mrs. Downey's words brought the case close to reality.

"And this was right after the girl's body hit the ground?" Dolan asked.

"Right afterward. Not two minutes after."

"Can you tell me how far downstairs the man went, Mrs. Downey? To the third floor, the second, the first?"

"I'm not so sure of that. I think he went below the third floor... at least I didn't hear him stop at the landing below us."

"Thank you, Mrs. Downey. You have done right to tell us..." Mrs. Downey stepped a pace forward. She lowered her voice confidently.

"But that isn't all, sergeant," she said. "That isn't all!"

Mussolini's Son Denies a Quarrel

Both He and Hal Roach Contradict Rumor of Split in Films

CHICAGO.—(AP)—Vittorio Mussolini, 21-year-old son of the Italian premier, said Thursday that his sight-seeing trip of America would take him to New York for a few days and he hoped to get to Washington to visit President Roosevelt.

"Hollywood is a fine place," Mussolini said of the film colony, where he went to study American production methods. "I had no trouble at any time with Hal Roach and he is still in the Italian film company so far as I know."

There had been reports that Producer Roach had withdrawn from his association with the son of the Italian dictator. Roach also denied this.

—And This Conclusion Is Altogether Sound

CLARENDON, Texas.—(AP)—The old bell had awakened Roy Beverly too many years for it to fool him, although it was masquerading as a country school bell.

He heard its peal recently while passing the school.

Climbing to the belfry, he identified the old Bar X ranch brand on it. It was purchased by the ranch 60 years ago, awakened Beverly every morning for years when he was a youth on the Bar X. The bell disappeared when fire destroyed the ranch house 30 years ago.

Shaffer Expects the Chair
For the Chicago capture, Shaffer blames a pretty young New Orleans woman who has admitted leaving her husband and child for gangland thrills.

"If Brady had left women alone," Shaffer told reporters at that time, "we wouldn't be here now. She told us to park the car and leave the junk in it, wanting us to stay in a hotel all night instead of leaving town."

Shaffer summed up the mob's philosophy in these words:

"Do I know what's coming to me? Sure, the electric chair with bells. What's the difference? I had a good time while it lasted."

opportunities in China for all nations. Officials here instructed the American minister, Leland Harrison, at Geneva to present a copy of its statement to the League's secretary general. Harrison is serving as a representative of the United States on the League's Far Eastern Advisory Committee in a consultative capacity.

Sanctions Loom
There still was much speculation here as to what further extent this government may be prepared to go in international co-operation. Much depends, it was agreed, on what steps the League and the nine-power treaty nations might advocate. President Roosevelt left little doubt in the minds of most observers, however, that he would commit the United States to almost any collaborative step short of actual force, both from the standpoint of military and economic sanctions, to halt the war in China.

Members of Congress
President Roosevelt's call for concerted effort toward peace continued to evoke comment from members of Congress.

Senator Minton (O., Ind.), an administration supporter, who returned recently from Europe, said the president's stand was "thoroughly justified by the situation in Europe and the East." He added he would support international economic pressure against those nations guilty of "brigandage."

Representative Maas (R., Minn.) declared:

"If we do not join now to stop aggressor nations, inevitably the time will come when we will be the object of aggression."

Expressing sympathy with the president's general objectives, Senator Adams (D., Colo.) said he favored international co-operation but wondered "what the president has in mind as a course of action."

On "Path to War"
Leaders of six peace organizations issued a statement contending the president's speech points the American people "down the road that led to the World War."

"He offers the same reasons for advancing down that road now that were offered in 1917," the statement said. "He would have the people believe that at the end of the road they will find peace and prosperity and justice. That is what they were told in 1917. They found instead war, Fascism, Communism, depression and debt."

Agreeing with the president that treaties must be observed, the statement said "their observance cannot be brought about by war or any collective action that threatens war." It added:

"The president has offered no constructive plan for bringing about observance of treaties. His only definite contribution of international law is by nullification of the neutrality law."

This Crop of Tears Makes Farmer Smile

MOOREHEAD, Minn.—(AP)—Housewives will shed a tear or two while farmers smile to the jingle of coin, as a result of one of this territory's best crops this fall—onions.

The largest onion crop ever produced in this area came this fall after an exceptional growing season that produced yields running from 230 bushels per acre upward.

High prices due to poor production in other onion-growing sections gave some fields in this district a net profit of $250 per acre, while gardeners say 450 acres planted near this city are expected to net between $50,000 and $75,000.

Principal crops of the United States, in their respective order, are corn, cotton, wheat, oats, tobacco and white potatoes.

"Depression Babies" Reduce Enrollments

INDIANAPOLIS.—(AP)—Six hundred fewer beginners enrolled in Indiana schools this fall than last. School commissioners attributed the decline to the fact that this year is the first in which "depression babies" reached school age. A decline in the birth rate was one of the results of the depression, they said.

Model Maid Has Model Mistress

Training of New Maid Is Responsibility of the Housewife

By JOAN DURHAM
AP Feature Service Writer

There are three times when the behavior of the maid-of-all-work reflects on her mistress:

When the maid is serving at table, answering the door and answering the telephone.

When you engage a maid you take on definite responsibilities. If you don't set her a good example—give her regular hours and definite duties—the chances are very good she will be slipshod and inefficient.

Training for Table

The maid must be taught to speak pleasantly and courteously and to be neat in appearance when answering the door.

She should be instructed to be polite and take messages carefully when she answers the phone.

Training her for service at table means thinking the whole meal through with her—until she gets accustomed to the routine. In fact, it's best to have a new maid serve the family several times before company is invited in.

Have her set the table while you supervise. Show her that the crease in the cloth must go down the middle of the table; that the glasses go above the knife on the right; that the napkins should be laid either on the plates or to the left of the forks.

Let her check for salt and peppers—one to each two people at the table; jellies, spoons, pickle forks and similar pieces; serving spoons—one for each vegetable to be passed—and one carving knife and fork.

Things To Check On

Let her check for salt and peppers—one to each two people at the table; jellies, spoons, pickle forks and similar pieces; serving spoons—one for each vegetable to be passed—and one carving knife and fork.

Let her check for salt and peppers—one to each two people at the table; jellies, spoons, pickle forks and similar pieces; serving spoons—one for each vegetable to be passed—and one carving knife and fork.

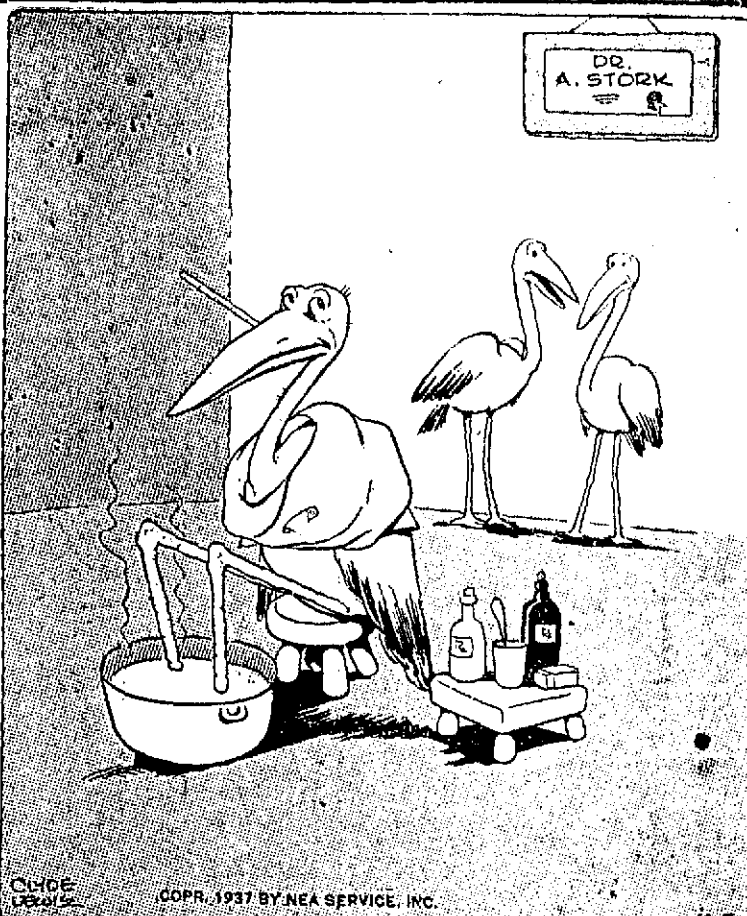

HELP KIDNEYS PASS 3 LBS. A DAY

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste. Frequent or scanty passage with something and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the cause of nagging backache, rheumatism, itching, red eyes, loss of appetite, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Hold Everything!

Fireman Gets a Call—It Is His Own House

CHADRON, Neb.—(AP)—Chapter from life of Volunteer Fireman Walter Hampton:

Hampton heard the general alarm, and swung on to the truck as it passed him on a downtown street.

He wondered where the truck was going, but not for long.

When it stopped he led the crew, shouting: "Come on, fellows! This is my house!"

dishes are removed, that the guest of honor should be served first and the hostess last, with the other guests served as they are seated; that all used dishes from one course must be removed before another course is served; that the gravy boat needs a tray under it; that in passing vegetables she must approach one guest at a time and be sure she's making it easy for him to help himself, and that stacking dishes is not permissible.

Make a point of conferring with your maid occasionally.

Don't lose patience if she doesn't remember everything all at once. Give her time to think it over. If necessary write things out for her to refer to.

AFL Suspicious of New Wagner Law

Craft Unions Demand Exemption From CIO-Called Elections

DENVER, Colo.—(AP)—American Federation of Labor convention delegates mildly applauded a suggestion Wednesday that the federation might well advocate repeal of the Wagner Labor Disputes act. Joseph Padway, Milwaukee labor lawyer, made the suggestion.

The law that A. F. of L. President William Green once called "labor's Magna Charta" should be repealed if the Labor Relations Board attempts to freeze craft unions out of mass production industries and if congress refused to amend the act to protect craft unions, Padway said.

He said the Labor Board's policy toward craft unions would be indicated clearly by a decision in the Allis Chalmers (Milwaukee) case. The C. I. O. has asked for a plant-wide election in that case while the A. F. of L. craft unions have insisted that they be excluded—to remain a separate bargaining agency no matter how the rest of the employees vote. If the board grants the C. I. O. demand, Padway said, "it will mean destruction of the craft groups in this plant and of the American Federation of Labor groups which are built upon the foundation of autonomous rights of its international."

A 7 Year Record of Getting Nothing Done!

Here's John Miller's Record of Achievement (?) in 7 Long and Fat Years as Congressman ... A record on which he begs your support ... and in the face of which he has the gall to attack the remarkable achievements of Carl E. Bailey in only 8 months as Governor.

IN 8 ACTIVE MONTHS GOVERNOR BAILEY HAS:

- Made possible savings of $240,000 in taxes to property owners. Inaugurated efficient Civil Service Act.
- Worked out an efficient clemency system, eliminating the clemency racket, and executed parole compacts with 28 states.
- Launched highway bond refinancing program that will reduce interest rates by millions.
- Carried out a comprehensive conservation program, including finest state parks set up in nation; Soil Conservation Act; a Flood Commission, and greatest forestry development program in history of state.
- Driven out gangsters and fugitive criminals and increased safety for automobile drivers through highly efficient state police force.
- Sponsored most progressive school legislation in history, including free library service; teacher retirement act; appropriation for and efficient distribution of free textbooks, and enactments that, with improved collection methods, make possible the largest school apportionment of all time from common school fund.
- Enlarged and improved Public Welfare Department, distributing increased aid to needy.
- Strengthened the Labor Department and establishment of Unemployment Compensation Division for full participation in federal Social Security Act.
- Effected vast improvements in state institutions, including School for the Blind, the penitentiary, the State Hospital, Boys Industrial Schools, and Tuberculosis Sanatorium.
- Given first substantial assistance to county governments since 1874 by payment of prosecuting attorneys salaries, allotments toward paying counties' share of expenses for tuberculosis patients, and payment of county agricultural agents salaries.

All of These Increased Services Were Achieved Without a Single New Tax Being Levied
